Talking with your child is one the best ways to develop language and early literacy skills. Talking also gives children a rich foundation of knowledge they can apply to their independent reading.

Early literacy tip

Ask your children open-ended questions (ones that can't be answered with yes or no) so that they have the opportunity to practice their language skills. Either/or questions are good for littles to let them practice their pronunciation.

Ex: Would you like to wear a blue shirt or green shirt today? What book would you like to read before bed?
